

Productivity Improvement Forum (PIF) 2022
22 Sept 2022

“There is much to celebrate at this year’s Productivity Improvement Forum – the first that we have had [in person] since 2019. The pandemic not only put a pause on our PIF event, it also reinforced the critical need for us to step up our efforts to do more with less in our sectors. I am glad to see us embedding the learnings that we have gained during the extended shortage of skilled craft labour, into the programs that we have launched and/or shared about today. Resource optimisation, scheduling efficiencies, mechanization, robotics, competency up-build - these are the fruits of several years of collaboration across industry and government. I am looking forward the successful transformation of our sectors, as we roll out these initiatives and continue our journey away from a labour-intensive past to a labour-smart future” - Mr Koh Yak Boo, Chairman of Productivity Council

“PEC Ltd is honored to receive the Productivity Certification Framework (PCF) Silver Award. Throughout this program, PEC has implemented transformational changes and sustainable productivity improvements through mechanisation, digitalisation and innovation in tandem with workers’ training, and in partnership with our strategic stakeholders” - Mr Tan Meng Sai, Senior Director, Projects, Engineering & Maintenance of PEC Ltd.

“The importance of structured upskilling cannot be stressed enough. The recognition of that comes in the form of certification, and these two go hand in hand to enable an effective transformation of our workforce here in Singapore” - Mdm Cheng Woei Fen, Executive Chairlady of Mun Siong Engineering Limited

“Certification is the first but important step for Companies to benchmark, with the objective of raising awareness and bringing ASPRI members together to move our Industry forth towards excellence in Productivity” – Rotary Group of Companies
